Here Are Some of the Spookiest Ways to Celebrate Halloween in Los Angeles This Year

Haunted houses, screenings of classic scary movies, and other fun ways to celebrate the season

By Kailyn Brown - October 7, 2021

It's that time of year again: pumpkins are precariously piled up outside of supermarkets, cotton spiderwebs and plastic skeletons are being hung with care, and spooky events are being unleashed across the city and beyond. While many of last year's festivities were canceled or heavily restricted because of COVID, this year's happenings in Southern California are much more open—with some safety measures in place, of course.

We've curated a list of some of the best ways to welcome back a fully fledged Halloween in Los Angeles. (Always be sure to check the county health guidelines before making plans.)

Witches Houses Trail 2

Los Angeles is filled whimsical and fairy-tale inspired homes. Friends Of Residential Treasures: L.A. (aka FORT: L.A.) explores these lived-in attractions with Witches Houses Trail 2's Halloween-themed architectural tour, which is curated by Buffy the Vampire Slayer actress Amber Benson. The self-guided tour is free and open to the public. All you have to do is download the map and special audio soundtrack—which will be made public after Oct. 13—and head out on your adventure.
